Aidan Cronin (b.1998) is an experimental narrative filmmaker. His work, mainly in super 16mm, is in conversation with the answer-less obstacles, questions, and elements of the human experience.

His work has screened at such festivals as Athens International Film + Video Festival, Brooklyn Film Festival, & Indie Street Fest. Winning such recognitions as best experimental film at Ivy Film Festival and best in show at Onion City Experimental Film + Video Festival.

Aidan previously worked under Patricia Zimmerman, the Director of the Finger Lakes Environmental Film Festival, as a fellow studying curation and film programming. He has curated work for Documentary filmmaker Brad Rappa, & Experimental filmmaker Cathy Crane. Aidan is passionate about film and eager for more opportunities in programming & curation.
